KALEIDOSCOPE BRITISH CHRISTMAS TELEVISION GUIDE FORMAT

The layout of the listings may seem a little daunting at first, but trying to pack this much information into a book does necessitate some compromises over instant readability. Each listing is split into up to four levels of information, though nearly all use three or fewer. The first of these levels reflects the information that relates to the programme as a whole. Now this "programme" might be a one-off special, a single six-part series, or a long-running programme with several hundred editions. Details which remain constant throughout the whole of the programme's run will be listed here. In most cases this means that the companies which commissioned and made the programme will be listed here, as would any writer, director or producer who fulfilled that role throughout. The duration, in minutes, will be generally found here too, as will the name of the company whose broadcast dates are used in the episode section. Here's a fictitious sample entry:

PACK MY BOX WITH FIVE DOZEN CHRISTMAS LIQUOR JUGS

Produced by BBC Birmingham for BBC1. Transmission details are for BBC1. Duration: 50 minutes.

Main regular credit(s): Music by Carry Goffin; executive producer Gerald Roy.
Main regular cast: Carlton Simon (Quiz-Master); Jesamine Taylor (Hostess).

Where a programme is split into more than one series, the next entry will be for the first series. This may be no more than a simple entry saying just "SERIES 1", but it can contain the same types of information as found at programme level. For example:

SERIES 1

Main regular credit(s): Produced by Di Vengram.

In this case, no single producer worked throughout the various series of Pack My Box with Five Dozen Christmas Liquor Jugs but Di Vengram fulfilled this role on the first series, so she gets credited here. Someone else will no doubt be credited for the second and third series. We'll come back to the third level in a moment, but in most cases, the next set of entries will be the episodes. Here's another fictional sample:

	Production No	VT Number	Holding / Source Format
24.12.1967	K22/456	T1029	R1N|n / 40
Programme associate Hedley McIlroy; directed by T. S. Wilson.
Gerry Knox, Frank Allaway.
23.12.1968 Celebrity Special			J / Live
Carlton Simon quizzes a group of celebrities in the special festive edition.
Programme associate Walter Hobday; directed by T. S. Wilson.
Winnie Wise, Stephen Harland, Audrey Godwin, Old Bill White*.
—.—.——	K22/459	T1033	R1 / 40
Alternative transmissions: BBC 2: 30.12.1968
Programme associate Hedley McIlroy; directed by Brian Hobday.
Fred Dunn, Doreen Rogers.

Each entry has a similar pattern. It starts with a transmission date and is followed by the episode title. Where a programme doesn't use episode titles, there will sometimes be a short description in its place and these will always be put in "speech marks" like this. Where the information is available, a production number and/or video tape recording number will be included. Finally, we list the current archive holding status of the episode and the original transmission format where we know it. See the end of the book for a list of archive and transmission format codes and other formatting symbols.

Lastly, the credits and cast for the particular episode are shown, excluding any regulars who have already been listed at programme or series level. Where a performer appears in multiple episodes in a particular named role, that role will be noted, otherwise just the name of the performer is listed. Sometimes, for quite long-running series, only those performers appearing most frequently will have their role recorded. If a performer appears in almost every episode of a long running series, he or she will sometimes be credited at programme level as though in every episode and the episodes they did not appear in will carry a note "So-and-so did not appear in this edition". Lastly, you may see some cast or credit information highlighted with an asterisk as in Old Bill White's credit in the second edition listed above. This shows that the apperance in question was uncredited and, while we believe the information to be correct, in many cases this is based upon unpublished information and so may not be separately verifiable.

The third level, between series and episode, can have more than one meaning. In most cases it's used where a dramatic programme or series is broken down into a number of shorter stories – Doctor Who is a good example of this – and where each story might have common cast or credits.

Each section may be complemented by a synopsis which, if present, will appear towards the top of the section and/or some brief (or in some cases, not so brief) notes, which follow the entry.

A list of the codes used in the Holding / Source Format column may be found at the end of the book.

OTHER CONVENTIONS USED

All dates are shown in standard UK format: day, then month, then year – e.g. 7th June 2005 is shown as 07.06.05 or 07.06.2005.

Where a transmission date is shown as —.—.—— then no transmission has been found for the particular standard channel or BBC region whose dates form the main listing for the programme. There are, however, alternative transmission details, for another channel or region – and these will be shown below.

Where a transmission date is shown as ##.##.#### then in most cases, the programme in question was either not made or was made but is known to have never been transmitted. In a few cases, the programme may have been shown but we will have been unable to trace a tx date. Usually, where this is unclear, an explanatory note will accompany the entry.

Sometimes while reading this Guide, under the actual entry for a series or play you might find an unusual note:

07/05/62 - PANORAMA (LCA6861D) - front: great big chunk of end of “This Is Your Life: Ellaline Terris”; ‘UK’ logo with announcement ‘This is BBC Television’ (as above). End: ‘Circle’ logo, no narration; in-vision announcer, start of verbal trail for play in the series “Suspense” after the news - recording speeds up; obscured bit of News presented by Michael Aspel, snatch of sound at start.

This footnote refers to a piece of continuity film held by the BBC archives on R1, R3 or D3 (for later post-1969 sequences.) It was standard practice in the earlier days of television for telerecordings to start early before the actual intended programme started, or finish late to ensure the whole show was kept. Many of these examples of trailers, BBC globes and in-vision announcers that survive, are kept on the starts or ends of programmes shown live.

To read the extract above: 07/05/62 - PANORAMA (LCA6861D) The date is the date that the trailer/continuity was recorded, the title in capital letters is the live show on the film reel and the number in brackets is the BBC accession number to find the sequence. What follows is then a shot by shot description of the actual footage. Most of these continuity trails are not formally catalogued on the BBC’s system, and are included in this guide to help researchers examining programmes that suffered timeslot changes or other unforseen circumstances not reflected in the Radio Times. It also shows that many clips exist from shows officially catalogued as wiped, which may help future broadcasters looking for the early work of Michael Caine or the first ever title sequence to Top of The Pops (which only survives in this format).

28.12.1979	Music, Music, Music	DB / 2"

Duration: 50 minutes.
Postponed from 30.08.1979.

It was to have been shown on 30/08/1979, which was actually the 21st birthday and was to have been called "21 Today" but the ITV strike of 1979 stopped that. So it was re-scheduled for Christmas week under the title "21 Years".

Held at the Wessex Archive. Wessex dubbed the two shows from the 2 inch masters. An engineer had an off air VHS from when they went out so he included the off air announcer intro etc from this VHS on the back end of the Digis. There are also adverts, a promo for part two, the Southern Weather and various idents.

24 CARROTT GOLD

A Celador production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 50 minutes.

No seasonal sleigh bells or holly for Jasper Carrott, although tonight's show does offer something special for armchair fans of the Birmingham comic. Performing the 'best' of his repertoire, this is the man filmed while on tour earlier this year. Rather than Television Centre the venue is an exalted one for a stand-up comic - the Royal Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon - and the topics subjected to Carrott's merciless monologues include Birmingham City Football Club, Chinese restaurants and space invader machines.

Written by Jasper Carrott; produced and directed by Paul Smith.

ABOLISH CHRISTMAS!

A Thames Television production. Transmission details are for the Thames Television region.

By Christmas eve, many people have had enough of the great Christian festival. One such person, who would abolish Christmas, is Bill Grundy. He feels it has become little more than an excuse for eating, drinking and excessive spending on presents. However, Dr John Rae, headmaster of Westminster School is among those who think there is still enough of value in the celebration of Christ's birth to retain Christmas. Both men put their case and debate the issue which is likely to arise in households all over the land.

Designed by Jim Nicholson; executive producer Diana Potter; produced and directed by Robert Fleming.

With Rosalind Knight (Countess of Morcar), Ros Simmons (Catherine Cusack), Ken Campbell (James Ryder), Desmond McNamara (John Horner), Amelda Brown (Jenny Horner), Brian Miller (Inspector Bradstreet), Rosalie Williams (Mrs Hudson), Frank Mills (Peterson), Frank Middlemass (Henry Baker), Don McCorkindale (Windigate), Eric Allan (Breckenridge), Maggie Jones (Mrs Oakshott), Ricki Scott (Hotel Attendant), John Cannon (Rough), Eric Kent (Rough), Ted Beyer (Warder).

Paul Finney is a pseudonym, hiding the identity of the original writer who asked for his name to be taken off the episode as he disagreed with some changes made to his script by John Hawkesworth. Television Today (17.03.1983) contained an feature on the series more than a year before its first broadcast. It lists Richard Harris as the writer responsible for dramatising this episode. A month later (21.04.1983) it also noted that John Davies was originally contracted to direct this episode, and two others, but was unable to fulfil his commitments due to illness. A later piece in Television Today (04.08.1983) named Paul Annett as the director.

A fourteenth script was commissioned for this series in case problems were encountered with one of the others. In the event, this extra story - "The Reigate Squire", adapted by Bill Craig - was never filmed.

One of the more literate sitcoms to grace the screens of ITV over any number of years was Simon Brett's After Henry. Unashamedly middle-class and wordy, the series started life as a radio programme made by the BBC who then turned down the suggestion of remaking the comedy for television, and so the rights were snapped up by Thames Television.
By the time the television version began broadcasting, the radio programme had already been running for three series and two Christmas specials, and would continue for another series in parallel with the television version.
The series was mostly about three women who shared the same house. Sarah France was a forty-two year-old widow whose husband, Henry, had died a couple of years earlier and she was still living in the house she had previously shared with her doctor husband and their daughter. Sarah was played in both the radio and television versions of the series by Prunella Scales who at this point – the late 1980s – was still very much associated with the role of Basil Fawlty's awful wife Sybil in Fawlty Towers, and After Henry gave her a good opportunity to be linked with a more sympathetic character in the mind of the public. Although appearing in numerous dramas over the years it was definitely in comedy that Scales made her most memorable small-screen appearances – another long-running role being that of Kate Starling opposite Richard Briers in numerous series of the BBC sitcom Marriage Lines in the mid-1960s.
Living in one self-contained flat in the same house was Sarah and Henry's daughter Clare, aged around eighteen when the series started. On radio, Clare was played by Gerry Cowper now most familiar as Rosie Miller in EastEnders. But Cowper would have been 30 years old later in the same year that the television series started, and it was felt that she was too old to play the teenage Clare on screen, so the role went to TV newcomer Janine Wood.
A second flat in the house was given over to Eleanor Prescott, Sarah's mother. Eleanor was played in both versions with great relish and her usual precision by the always reliable Joan Sanderson. Sanderson, who had been acting on television since the start of the 1950s was originally brought into the public consciousness as the formidable Doris Ewell in various series of Please Sir! in the late 1960s and early 1970s. By the late 1980s, though, I would imagine most people would recall her in a one-off role – that of Mrs Richards, the guest who was very hard of hearing in an episode of Fawlty Towers.

The final regular cast character, and the only male one, was Russell Bryant, the owner and manager of Bygone Books, the second-hand bookshop in which Sarah works. Russell acts as a confidant to Sarah, particularly when her daughter and her mother gang up on her and she needs someone outside the family to discuss things with. Benjamin Whitrow played the radio Russell, whereas on television Jonathan Newth took the role.
Much of the humour in the series stems from the similarities in the relationships between the two mothers and their daughters and sometimes Simon Brett would script the episodes with almost identical scenes for Sarah France - one with her as the mother complaining to or questioning her daughter about something; and then later a similar scene would be played out between Eleanor and Sarah with Sarah forced into the same position as she'd earlier placed her daughter.
Another long-running joke was Eleanor's "geriatric mafia" as Sarah called them. Despite apparently only rarely leaving the house, Eleanor gets to hear all that's going on through a tortuous chain of people involving the likes of "Valerie Brown on the pension counter's sister, Mary" and "Mrs Graham the receptionist at the surgery's brother-in-law's stepson, Colin".
In all, 34 radio episodes and 38 television episodes were made with the latter running from January 1988 until August 1992. The entire television series is available to buy on DVD, while the radio version was regularly re-run on BBC Radio 7, though whether that will continue with its rebranding as BBC Radio 4 Extra remains to be seen.

16.12.1972	Down by the Greenwood Side – A Pantomime with a Difference	1577	D2 / 2"

Duration: 40 minutes.

Composer Harrison Birtwistle has based this musical entertainment on the English mummers' plays which, since the Middle Ages, were traditionally performed on the village green at Christmas.

You meet St. George, the gallant knight who slew the dragon, and the Bold Slasher, a wicked infidel, who does battle with him. But help is at hand when Dr. Blood, a thoroughly professional man of medicine, and Jack Finney, a weird spirit who heals through sacred ritual, appear on the scene.

A more sombre tradition, the Ballad of the Cruel Mother, comes into the play in the person of the mysterious baby killer Mrs. Green.

The sanguine figure of Father Christmas, acting as compere and referee, presides over the proceedings and brings all to an amicable conclusion.

Written by Michael Nyman; music by Harrison Birtwistle; orchestra conducted by Elgar Howarth; editor Humphrey Burton; designed by Barbara Bates; produced by Bryan Izzard; directed by Barrie Gavin.

With Jenny Hill (Mrs Green), Michael Kilgarriff (Father Christmas), Eric Allen (St George), Keith Washington (The Bold Slasher), Roger Delgado (Doctor Blood), Wayne Pritchard (Jack Finney), Keith Chegwin (Boy), Philip Baldwin (Boy), London Sinfonietta.

23.12.1972	A Play in a Manger	1578	D2 / 2"

Two weeks ago playwright Brian Clark gathered together a group of people for a weekend at a residential college in Debden, Essex. There they discussed the Christmas story in terms of today, 1,972 years on. They improvised, wrote and rehearsed it, then performed their new Nativity in a traditional setting in the local Anglican church on the Sunday evening. An Aquarius film unit stayed with the group throughout the weekend recording the play as it developed—and in the end the crew members, too, were caught up in the action!

23.12.1983 The Everly Brothers Reunion Concert C1 / C1

Duration: 75 minutes.

Last September at the Royal Albert Hall Don and Phil Everly performed together for the first time in ten years. The concert was the popular music event of the year. With a fine band, including lead guitarist Albert Lee and Pete Wingfield on keyboards, the Everlys faithfully re-created the sound of their huge repertoire of hits: 'Cathy's clown', All I have to do is dream', 'When will I be loved', 'Wake up, little Susie' and the rest stirred the memories and emotions of a rapturous audience. The Everlys' harmonies are among the most special sounds in rock 'n' roll-and they sound as good as ever.

Sound Barrie Hawes; lighting by John Mason; associate producer Anthony Wall; produced by Alan Yentob and Stephanie Bennett; directed by Rick Gardner.

With The Everly Brothers (Musicians).

ARENA RADIO NIGHT

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Usual duration: 280 minutes.
Your television and radio are cast as personalities in this night of themed programmes showing how the two media have competed over the years, and which medium does what best. To make the most of the evening, as David Attenborough explains in his introduction, you need to have your radio and TV in the same room, so that they can "talk to" each other, although there are times when you can choose between listening and viewing. There's nostalgia, science, drama and documentary. And linking it all, some lively sparring between the spirits of your radio and television, barely controlled by announcer Peter Donaldson.
Main regular credit(s): Series editors Nigel Finch and Anthony Wall.

THE BALLAD OF SALOMON PAVEY

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

This is a boisterous musical play set to glorious Elizabethan music. It is the story of a famous young actor who, in 1601 and at the age of 11, was kidnapped and pressed to join "The Children of the Chapel Royal"—one of the professional companies of boy actors which entertained the fashionable Elizabethan nobility. In a private theatre at Blackfriars, London, Salomon and his friends are driven to perfect their singing and acting talents. It's an arduous life for the boys, but success brings riches and fame to the men who exploit them. With a special Christmas play to act in front of the Queen, Salomon and his friends find life becomes even harder ...

THE BLEAK OLD SHOP OF STUFF

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 60 minutes.

It's no use trying to hold out in the face of this daft Dickens spoof. Better to abandon yourself to its rich figgy pudding of rampant silliness. The idea is a loose relation of Radio 4's Bleak Expectations, with added visuals of London's brick alleyways, street urchins and wind-up top hats.

Main regular credit(s): Written by Mark Evans; produced by Gareth Edwards; directed by Ben Gosling Fuller.

Main regular cast: Robert Webb (Jedrington Secret-Past).

Holding / Source

19.12.2011 (pilot) HD/DB / HDC

Jedrington's wife is hauled off by the wicked Skulkingworm to meet an unpaid debt. What follows involves a lot of twiddly wordplay ("Oh, fiddlesticks and violin twigs!"), sight gags, pratfalls, treacle dependency, peals of wicked laughter and a man with a goose for a hat.

With Stephen Fry (Malifax Skullingworm), Finlay Christie (Victor), Katherine Parkinson (Conceptiva Secret-Past), Ambra Lily Keegan (Victoria), Una Stubbs (Aunt Good Spelling), Jude Wright (Archie), David Mitchell (Jolliforth), Celia Imrie (Miss Christmasham), Pauline McLynn (Maggotty), Johnny Vegas (Artful Codger), Judy Parfitt (Aunt Chastity), Phyllida Law (Aunt Sobriety), Terrence Hardiman (Fruitcake / Mr Christmasham).

NB - The first Blue Peter Omnibus editions started this season, transmitted on Sunday mornings - a slightly edited compilation of the previous week's programmes. These omnibus editions are junked shortly after transmission, although a few examples (such as the first ever) have been retained, a few others sent to the NFA. The specially recorded links, joining the two live shows into one, are generally recorded after the Thursday transmission, directly onto the PasB tape. Therefore, in the main, these still exist.

Yet again the summer compilations were given numbers though this has not been a consistent policy over the years.

Goodwill is thin on the ground and there's precious little peace either. A jazz club and a beautiful woman put Harry on collision course with Ken.

Written by Peter Palliser; directed by John Woods.

With Jill Gascoine, Peter Vaughan, Alfred Molina, Clarke Peters, Dave Hill, Marcia Warren, P. P. Arnold, Geff Francis, Christina Greatrex, Garry Cooper, Maggie McCarthy.

Peter Revell remembers, "I worked at the Birmingham studios as a sound engineer from 1966 until the closedown in 1990 and was fortunate to have been on the studio crew of Boon. This was the only programme I ever worked on which had 2 working titles, the first couple of episodes were made under the title Box 13 which I thought was snappy and original and the remainder were made with the title Anything Legal Considered, the Boon title was finally adopted before broadcast. I was also involved with the recording of the title music which was composed and performed by Barrington Pheloung who also composed the title music for Morse. This was also an unusual event, there being only 3 people involved, myself, another sound engineer and Barri who layed all of the tracks himself using a sampling keyboard, the whole process being completed in a 5 hour session. During my time on this series I got to know Michael quite well and found him to be a very ordinary sort of person who didn't take himself too seriously and who enjoyed spending time with the crew, we often partied at the Holiday Inn next door to the studio until the early hours and would arrive on set next morning somewhat the worse for wear."

THE BOSWELL AND JOHNSON SHOW

Alternative/Working Title(s): BOSWELL'S LIFE OF JOHNSON

A Scottish Television production. made in association with Prospect Theatre Company. Transmission details are for the Yorkshire Television region. Duration: 52 minutes.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, poet, playwright. and compiler of the famous dictionary, once said: "Sir, the noblest prospect a Scotchman ever sees is the high road that leads him to England." Fortunately young James Boswell, the vain, lustful and gregarious son of the Laird of Auchinleck, took that road. It led to his deep but sometimes abrasive friendship with the self-opinionated and blustering Johnson - and eventually fame as his biographer in his classic Life of Johnson. Scottish Television, with the Prospect Theatre Company, presented this rumbustious and memorable account of the relationship between the two in a production which had already won acclaim at the 1970 Edinburgh Festival.

Adapted by Ian Thorne; based on a play by Toby Robertson, Bill Dufton and Ian Thorne; designed by Archie McArthur; executive producer Liam Hood; produced by Toby Robertson; directed by Clarke Tait.

This one-off programme examines the rise and demise of the festive light entertainment spectacular. The programme features classic rocking-chair crooners, choral fantasies and winter wonderlands. From CHRISTMAS NIGHT WITH THE STARS to Val Doonican and CHRISTMAS SNOWTIME SPECIAL, the show revisits a world of snow made from soapflakes, chorus lines sweating in winter woolies and recycled sleighs.

CARRY ON...

A Thames Television production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

The Carry On films need no introduction. They are classic, iconic slices of British life that no longer exist. Indeed, they probably never existed in the first place, but they are how people would like to remember the past. The first film was intended as a one-off but Carry On Sergeant proved so successful that it started a genre that continued until 1992 when Carry On Columbus closed the series.

By the advent of colour film the production schedule of films was well-established: two per year opening at the cinema every six months. So it is somewhat surprising to find that Thames Television persuaded Peter Rogers and Gerald Thomas to consider making a one-off Christmas pantomime for 1969. They were lured by the opportunity to work with the new colour technology on offer at Teddington Studios.

The 1969 special was based on Charles Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol'. The ensemble cast reflected the films with a single exception – Kenneth Williams was under contract to the BBC making his own show so he could not appear. Frankie Howerd, who had recently made Carry On Up The Jungle, replaced him as the Fairy Godmother. Sid James played Scrooge, supported by Terry Scott, Charles Hawtrey, Hattie Jacques, Barbara Windsor, Bernard Bresslaw and Peter Butterworth. It proved to be the number one rated show of the entire festive season, and a sequel was commissioned for 1970.

Christmas Eve 1970 saw Carry On Long John unveiled to the viewing public. Due to a technicians strike about using colour technology it was made in monochrome which restricted its future repeat. This time Sid James was Long John Silver with the same supporting cast as before except Frankie Howerd had returned to making his own material for the BBC. Charles Hawtrey as Old Pew caused numerous problems behind the scenes insisting on star billing and the best dressing room and he was dropped for future specials.

Thames Television commissioned two more specials for 1972 and 1973, but the cast were increasingly in demand for other TV work and some cast changes were made. In 1972 Sid James was doing Bless This House, so Kenneth Connor, Hattie Jacques and Barbara Windsor carried the piece; Sid returned in 1973 alongside Windsor, Joan Sims, Peter Butterworth and others. These latter specials abandoned the pantomime theme in favour of a series of sketches. The 1972 episode doesn't really gel as a unit, but by 1973 the sketches are risqué and sharp. Sid James as a naughty Santa Claus sums up the bawdy, unsubtle feel of the Carry On genre.

The best editions are 1969 and 1973, unsurprising to learn that they are written by Mr Carry On himself: Talbot Rothwell. The other specials were written by Dave Freeman and Sid Colin. Rogers and Thomas rated Dave Freeman so highly he went on to write for the cinema films including Carry On Behind.

Alan Tarrant who made the second special took the concept of Carry On TV series to the planners at ATV and Thames Television lost the rights. ATV went on to make Carry On Laughing and broadcast a version of the stage play Carry On London as a one-off special called What a Carry On. This 1973 staging does not exist – did any readers of this TV Memories record it??

Thames Television made one final outing into Carry On territory. The films were recut into a series of 25-minute TV compilations called Carry On Laughing. In 1983 Thames shot some new linking material with Kenneth Williams and Barbara Windsor. They introduced clips from the films. Carry On Laughing's Christmas Classics is best remembered for Williams dressed as a fairy, but is not repeated due to copyright problems, so viewers will never see his tutu again!

Even the ghosts of Christmas past, present and future take on a new significance when played by the Carry On team.

Everyone knows just how mean old Scrooge was. But not even Dickens could have anticipated what happened when Ebenezer kept Frank N. Stein and Dracula short of development money... refused to lend Robert Browning the fare to take Elizabeth Barrett to Venice... and evicted Cinderella from her basement kitchen.

With Sidney James (Scrooge), Terry Scott (Doctor Frank N. Stein), Charles Hawtrey (Spirit of Christmas Past), Hattie Jacques (Elizabeth Barrett), Barbara Windsor (Cinderella), Bernard Bresslaw (Cissie), Peter Butterworth (Dracula), Frankie Howerd (Robert Browning / The Fairy Godmother).

Alt.Title(s): Carry On Again Christmas

When Robert Louis Stevenson penned his classic tale of piracy and plunder, Treasure Island, morality rather than mirth seems to have been uppermost in his mind. He can hardly have reckoned upon having his theme being re-worked for Peter Rogers'- producer of 23 Carry On films to date - team. Still less could he have visualised the petite blonde Barbara Windsor in the role of his cabin boy hero, Jim Hawkins. However, last year's Carry on Christmas was the most popular programme of Christmas week, and Carry On again Christmas bids fair - as Long John might have said - to do the same in 1970.

Written by Sid Collin and Dave Freeman; designed by Roger Allan; executive producer Peter Eton; produced and directed by Alan Tarrant.

Alt.Title(s): Carry On Stuffing

What better setting for a feast of fun than after a feast of food at an 18th century country house-which not only gives the gang a chance to dress up in a variety of period costumes, but also to take turns in recalling some of their bawdiest stories of earlier times. This is your chance to see again the Carry On team stuffing the turkey, the geese and sundry other birds, and just pausing to take a sideswipe at all kinds of other British institutions-like the haunted house, the outposts of the Empire, and even the problems of the permissive society in pantomime. But before you loosen your belts, here's a warning. Like all sauce, this could prove pretty hot stuff.

Written by Dave Freeman and Talbot Rothwell; designed by Tony Borer; executive producer Peter Rogers; produced by Gerald Thomas; directed by Ronnie Baxter.

With Hattie Jacques, Joan Sims, Barbara Windsor, Kenneth Connor, Peter Butterworth, Norman Rossington, Jack Douglas, Brian Oulton.

24.12.1973	Carry On Christmas	8600	DB-D3 / 2"

What would the festive season be without the almost traditional buffoonery of the Carry On team, back for their fourth ITV Christmas special. In this year's brand-new show, their celebrations centre around how our ancestors have enjoyed Christmas down the centuries. But first a visit to Father Christmas in the fairy grotto of a department store. The cloak, hood and whiskers cannot disguise the moon-cratered features of Sidney James, borrowing a little of Santa's time to reminisce about the good old days.

Written by Talbot Rothwell; designed by Allan Cameron; executive producer Peter Rogers; produced by Gerald Thomas; directed by Ronald Fouracre.

With Sidney James, Joan Sims, Barbara Windsor, Kenneth Connor, Bernard Bresslaw, Jack Douglas, Peter Butterworth, Julian Holloway, Laraine Humphreys.

14.12.1996 Do You Believe in Fairies? DB / D3S

In the run-up to Christmas, the Casualty scriptwriters have produced a suitably sobering story about the consequences of drink driving. Equally traumatic is the storyline about a seven year-old who arrives at Holby City hospital after falling into a greenhouse. Meanwhile, Jude still hasn't shared her news with Matt, who is considering setting up a business abroad: "Give me one good reason why I shouldn't just pack my bags and move to Crete!" he exclaims. Will she give him a reason or won't she?

19.12.1998 20:00 – 20:50 Miracle on Casualty DB / D3S

The first of two episodes over the Christmas period (the second is on next Saturday) finds Holby A&E in a party mood - at least they will be, if Sonny manages to book a band and sort out a certain Mr B Alloon, who's floating around one of the cubicles. There are plenty of seasonal malady storylines - including the Christmas pub quiz that, far from spreading peace and goodwill to all men, ends in a huge punch-up. However, the centrepiece is the hospital's annual party, where the usual seasonal smooching (and drinking) is taking place. Josh is certainly the worse for wear, Sam is drowning his sorrows over Lee, and Mark has a grin more suited to a Cheshire cat. But why are Christmas babies never born in a hospital bed?

Written by Tony McHale; directed by Michael Owen Morris.

With Michael French (Nick Jordan), Nicola Stephenson (Julie Fitzjohn), Ian Kershaw (Pat Garrett), Stephen Moore, Ram John Holder, Emma Tate, Desmond McNamara, Sandra James-Young, Katy Secombe, Emma Cunningham, Richard Huw, Judith Davis, Giles Ward, Stephen Ullathorne, Eleanor Ogbourne.

Bob himself named this quiz show which was based on the U.S. show Hollywood Squares.

Have you ever seen Bob's Supersquares, The ATV Sunday Quiz or Bob and the Big Box Game? No, because they were all Bob's own titles for a gameshow that began life in the USA as Hollywood Squares.

Devised by Merrill Heatter and Bob Quigley, Lew Grade acquired the rights to Hollywood Squares. The concept involving celebrities sitting in noughts or crosses boxes. Contestants would be asked a question, hear a plausible answer from the star and decide if their answer was true or false. A correct guess and you could try to form three noughts or crosses in a row and win the game.

ATV keen to keep Bob Monkhouse after his work on The Golden Shot gave the task of creating the new show to Francis Essex and Paul Stewart Laing. Essex wanted a wide variety format with musical acts so two pilots were made with musical contributions from Showaddywaddy and Sweet Sensation. Both acts had become famous on New Faces, directed by Paul Stewart Laing. Laing thought the music acts were poor, Essex agreed and they were dropped in favour of a charity quiz game called Bob's Full House.

From the outset ratings were high with many critics praising the witty quips from the guest stars, who included Willy Rushton, Diana Dors, Harry H. Corbett and Alfred Marks. Choosing a voice over artist was tricky, Laing insisted they use an ex-Radio 1 DJ who had fallen out with the BBC and was now unemployable. At the readthrough for Francis Essex the DJ was very straight-laced, but once he got the part, the real madcap Kenny Everett came to the fore, and his career was relaunched.

The witty jokes from the guest stars were not actually ab-libs, they were carefully scripted by Dennis Berson who wrote the jokes uncredited. Laing would brief contestants and never give them the answers. Only once did Diana Dors ask for an answer and she told the audience, much to Laing's anger. Anthea Redfern also insisted on the correct answers, but Laing told her the wrong answers, much to the amusement of her husband Bruce Forsyth who was watching the show.

Many of the answers were based on unusual trivia facts compiled by Jeremy Beadle. When the first series began to be transmitted, letters began to arrive complaining that the answers were factually wrong. Laing summoned Jeremy Beadle to his office and asked, "How do you get your answers?" Beadle replied he often made up the answers if they sounded "close enough"! After that, the answers had to be checked by an outside body.

Hollywood Squares finished with the winner being given the keys to a car. The IBA, the regulatory body that ran ITV, objected and said winners must earn their prize so Laing and Berson devised an endgame involving the winner answering nine questions on a theme to win the prize. The question one week was "Name nine types of bread?" One of the answers was bread rolls. ATV received complaints that bread rolls were not a type of bread. Laing replied by asking the irate complainers if they had the courage to contact the winner and ask for the prize back.

Eventually Laing left to become a freelance director working on This Is Your Life and London Night Out. Bob left to become the host of Family Fortunes. He returned in 1993 to remake the show for Central Television in association with Grundy Television. The concept remained similar, but the charity round was dropped. Guest start included John Inman, Wendy Richard, the Chippendales and new comedians such as Shane Richie and Joe Pasquale. The gags this time were created by Bob and Colin Edmonds, again uncredited. Bob Monkhouse died in 2003 and did not take part in a third remake from So! Television who made a pilot for Channel 5.

Edited version of an untransmitted six-part ARMCHAIR THRILLER serial. If the title sequences and recaps are ignored, this version condenses approximately 134 minutes of material in the original serial down to 104 with the material removed being fairly evenly spread across the six episodes. The edited version was made at a time when the original recordings (i.e. before post-production) were still available as material which cross-faded to break- or end-titles in the episodic version appears here without the fades. Aside from this, it contains no VT material other than that in the six-parter although a very small amount of location film footage unused by the longer version appears here.

CHRIS BONINGTON - THE EVEREST YEARS

A Border Television production. Transmission details are for the London Weekend Television region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Chris Bonington crowned an already distinguished career by reaching the summit of Everest at the age of 50. This documentary, however, is more than simply a record of Bonington's climbing successes and failures. This is probably the first film to delve so deeply into the psyche of a man who is both an internationally-renowned climbing 'superstar' and media performer. The picture of Bonington, his wife Wendy and their two sons living in idylliclakeland surroundings seems to portray an ideal life: but the tip of a frightening iceberg emerges as they discuss Chris's responsibility to his family. Here is rare footage of Chris's earlier climbs as well as the major expeditions so full of excitement and drama leading to the realisation of his personal dream when he stood for the first time on the summit of Everest. Chris Bonington — the Everest Years is a uniquely documented story of ambition and courage.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

An Anglia production. Transmission details are for the Yorkshire Television region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Dickens' classic story is set in the London of the 1840's against a background of poverty and starvation, a London he so wanted to reform. It tells of the miserly Scrooge and of the Spirits of Christmas Past, Present and Future who take him on a journey through time... his own time, where once again he witnesses all that has happened in his miserable life, and sees what may happen if he does not mend his ways. And yet A Christmas Carol is a hopeful and a joyful story. One hundred years after Dickens' death its message still rings out bright and dear.

Written by Charles Dickens; drawings by John Worsley; produced by Paul Honeyman; directed by John Salway.

Westward Television showed this in two twenty-five minute parts: on 26.12.70 and 27.12.70.

Charles Dickens's "A Christmas Carol" is a great seasonal story and when Anglia Television screened its version across the ITV network in December 1970, the collaboration between the artist John Worsley and the narrator/producer Paul Honeyman launched a special kind of storytelling for children. This style had started in 1969 with Kenneth Graham's "Wind in the Willows". These unique and simple programmes provided mass enjoyment for millions at teatime. Worsley and Honeyman, with the added talents of Anglia's Head of Music, Peter Fenn, not only gave a new element to ITV children's viewing but also created a programme genre in itself - a new art of television storytelling.

For this one-hour network special, Worsley provided 150 new paintings and the last painting had barely dried before the cameras rolled, finished within just one hour of the recording. "A Christmas Carol" was acclaimed by the TV critics and became one of the jewels of the Christmas TV season that year.

CHRISTMAS IN CALLIOPE

A Tyne Tees Television production. Transmission details are for the Anglia region. Duration: 40 minutes.

A Christmas morning service with carols from H.M.S. Calliope, a shorebased naval training establishment on the Gateshead bank of the Tyne. Opened two years ago, H.M.S. Calliope was named after a I6-gun cruiser which, after distinguished active service, had served since 1901 as a training ship further up river.

The carols arc sung by a choir of officers, men and WRENS, and joining in arc other members of the ship's company together with relatives and friends. The lessons, unfolding the Christmas story, are read by the C.O., Captain J. S. Metcalfe, O.B.E., V.R.D., as well as sailors and WRENS.

Executive producer Maxwell Deas; directed by Roy Lomas.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING – THIS IS A GOVERNMENT HEALTH WARNING

A Yorkshire Television production. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Are you looking forward to Christmas? Or do you believe there's no hell like Noel? Love it or loathe it, this could be your happiest, healthiest Christmas ever — if you take Dr Miriam Stoppard's advice on how to avoid the season's traditional pitfalls: undercooked turkey, teeth cracked on the coins in the plum pud, hangovers and holiday blues, days spent cooped up with the relatives. High on the list of Miriam's prescriptions for a painless Christmas is a good laugh. Which is why the programme combines advice with a hilarious look at yuletide fads and foibles, provided by a team of top comedy stars and writers.

Written by Barry Took, Alan Coren, Andrew Marshall, Raymond Briggs, Ken Hoare and Simon Welfare; music director Robert Hartley; designed by Alan Davis; produced by Simon Welfare; directed by Graham Wetherell.

A CHRISTMAS MESSIAH

A Granada production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

Since its first performance in 1742 Handel's Messiah has become a Christmas institution, particularly in the North of England where in chapel, church or cathedral the music rings out every year. Tonight's performance captures the unique quality of the work as a living celebration of Christmas. The score is presented in a variety of settings sung by a variety of voices: the Halle Orchestra and Chorus, an amateur choir in the heart of the Yorkshire valleys, a black Gospel group and the rock voices of Kiki Dee and Paul Jones. The programme is prefaced by an introduction from the conductor Owain Arwel Hughes.

Introduced by Owain Arwel Hughes; music director Bill Connor; produced by Steve Hawes; directed by David Liddiment.

CHRISTMAS PAST

An LWT production. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 50 minutes.

The story of how our Christmas rituals - Santa Claus, stockings, crackers, fir trees and present giving - came about. All these are recently invented 'traditions' which the mass of the population has enjoyed only since World War Two. Using archive film, beautiful reconstructions and heart-rending stories of those who remember Christmas right back to the early years of this century, the programme is a rich portrait of how our most important national festival came about.

CHRISTMAS UNDER FIRE

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 90 minutes.

Hopefully we will all enjoy a merry and peaceful Christmas this year, but in 1939 the seasonal message of peace and goodwill toward men seemed an impossible dream. This documentary, narrated by Alan Bennett, features poignant personal recollections of the festive seasons during the Second World War, from both the battlefront and the home front. Food shortages and rationing were among the challenges for most families, and there are stomach-churning tales of what some creative mothers served up for Christmas dinner.

Executive producer Laurence Rees; produced by Jamie Muir.

19.12.1987 22:05 – 23:05 Part 1 D2 / 1"

Clive James finally travels to Japan and finds out for himself what it's like to participate in the kind of crazy game show he has observed for so long— with devasting results. Clive discovers what the Japanese salaryman' does to let off steam at the end of his record breakingly productive day — it seems to involve drinking a great amount of whisky, and hitting plastic squirrels with a plastic hammer. Culture shock hits Clive hard — sitting crosslegged for hours on end, being fed raw fish by Geisha girls and attempting to navigate the Tokyo subway system — not very successfully. All this on top of jetlag and a Japanese phrasebook that leaves a lot to be desired.

26.12.1987 22:50 – 23:45 Part 2 D2 / 1"

Clive continues his journey through Japan to discover how the over-achieving Japanese let their hair down at the end of the day. Clive is almost flattened by a 35-stone Sumo wrestler, and travels to the health spa of Beppu to be voluntarily buried up to his neck in volcanic sand and simmered like a potato in a boiling sulphur bath, inexplicably full of grapefruits.

A girl is left a legacy of a musical box which plays "The Twelve Days of Christmas". Colonel March sets out to solve a riddle.

Written by Paul Monash; music by Philip Green; sound Cecil Thornton; editor Geoffrey Foot; dubbing editor Leslie Hodgson; director of photography Lionel Banes; camera Cecil Cooney; continuity Shirley Barnes; make-up Michael Morris; hairdressing Bill Griffiths; wardrobe Brenda Gardner; art director Cedric Dawe; production supervisor Leslie Gilliat; assistant director George Mills; directed by Bernard Knowles.

With Ewan Roberts (Inspector Ames), Sandra Dorne (Rosie), George Coulouris (Harwood), Tommy Duggan (Lawton), John Gabriel (Jeweller), Maxwell Foster* (Mullins).

All these episodes exist on B1 in the USA.

The 1953 theatrical release, Colonel March Investigates, was compiled from three episodes: Hot Money, Death in the Dressing Room and The New Invisible Man. Despite the fact that the direction on each of these episodes is credited to Donald Ginsberg, the film direction is credited to Cyril Endfield, presumably because Ginsberg acted as stand-by for Endfield in the same way that Charles de la Tour had done for the films The Limping Man, Impulse and Child in the House. This was required by the union ACT to allow Endfield, an American, to direct in the UK. Like de la Tour, as a director Ginsberg was primarily known for documentaries. The film was released by Criterion. Seventy minutes.

The majority of the information detailing the real writers behind the on-screen pseudonyms was collated by Steve Neale and has previously been published in "Pseudonyms, Sapphire and Salt" (Historical Journal of Film, Radio and Television, Vol. 23, No. 3, 2003), "Swashbucklers and Sitcoms, Cowboys and Crime, Nurses, Just Men and Defenders: Blacklisted Writers and TV in the 1950s and 1960s" (Film Studies, Issue 7, Winter 2005) and "Un-American Hollywood: Politics and Film in the Blacklist Era" (Rutgers University Press, 2008).

In 1962 the BBC decided to challenge ITV's monopoly on soap operas and then commissioned Compact. Scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights to avoid Coronation Street it was the brainchild of Hazel Adair and Peter Ling who eventually finished the soap in 1965 and went on to create Crossroads for ATV.

Set in the editorial office of a women's magazine, the drama surrounded the lives of the photographers, editors, designers, writers and art directors. For many years people have wondered who the cover girl on the first issue was; records reveal it was Sylvia Steele who was photographed for the cover of 'Compact' on 1st December1961.

James Cellan Jones was one of the staff directors who made episodes on a rota basis:
"Eventually I had a message from Donald Wilson, Head of Serials: 'I want you to start on Compact next month,' he said. Compact was the worst sort of twice weekly romantically rubbishy serial about a woman's magazine. The writers were reputed to get £250 per half hour script which very often they would farm out to be ghosted by a hack for £100. I hated the idea.
I rang Donald and I said, 'It's not that I am too good for it. I think everybody is too good for it and it's meretricious rubbish.'
There was a pause. He said, 'You will either do this, or you will do nothing and I will personally see that you direct nothing for the rest of your life.'
'Well,' I said, 'If you put it that way…'

Compact was broadcast live on Tuesdays and recorded as live on Wednesdays for transmission on Thursdays. There was no time or money for editing, so unless one of the cast said 'fk' (and it did happen) the show went out as recorded. I was due to start rehearsing my first two episodes on Boxing Day. I went to the rehearsal room in Putney. As was the custom then, I had worked out every move, every camera position and every lens. When I walked in they said, 'Change of plan, Bill Kerr's been run over and we have to re-write everything.'

I threw the camera script away and started from scratch. It was the best thing that could have happened. Robert Flemyng played the Editor. He was a superbly composed actor who took his position as leading man very seriously. He supported me gently without making it obvious. The rest of the cast were very supportive; when I decided to stage a scene in a gents' lavatory, (very daring in those days) Bobby Desmond said, 'You want to be known as the Alain Resnais of Putney Bridge South.'

Somehow we got through the rehearsals and after three and a half days we moved into the studio. It was all going to be all right. Somehow, I had got a couple of shows together and I knew they would work. Then disaster struck. Gretchen Franklin button-holed me.
'What time do we go out tonight dear?' She said.
'7.30 on the dot.'
'You do know I am in the theatre in Gentle Jack, and we go up at 7.30?'
I was dumb struck. Booking a tape machine to play in a scene was a very long wearisome business. Because of the seriousness of the occasion, we got the machine in the next half hour and pre-recorded Gretchen's scene, let her go and continued with the rehearsal.
When 7.15 came around we were sitting in the gallery and the network was on the monitor. I wished they would turn it off, I wanted to concentrate. Suddenly I remembered that at 7.29 someone would say 'One minute' and at 7.29 and 45 seconds someone would say 'Stand by' and at 7.29 and 52 seconds I would say 'Run Telecine' and at 7.30 precisely we would be on the air.

It all happened, we seemed to be going well; and then I remembered Gretchen's scene. I croaked 'Stand by VT.' It needed 10 seconds to run up and giving a wild guess I cued it, 'Run VT.' It turned out more or less right and we played the scene and we finished the show. When Sydney Newman saw the episode, he said, 'This is brilliant,' which pleased me, though I thought it a bit over the top for a soap opera.

The next night went smoothly, I seemed to get on with the cast and I started a run of 18 episodes over several months. On the night BBC2 started, we had rehearsed and were ready to go. Suddenly all the lights went out, there had been a power failure. I was called up to Planning and agreed to record the first episode in the morning and spend the rest of the day rehearsing the second and record it at night. Nothing on Compact was ever quite the same again."

These early episodes were not fully networked although the only ITV companies in operation in December 1960 who didn't take the series from episode one were ATV and Tyne Tees both of whom broadcast imported American series in the timeslot (ATV: Wyatt Earp and Broken Arrow; Tyne Tees: Lawman and Highway Patrol). Most sources report that the Friday performance was live with the episode for the following Wednesday taped directly afterwards. This pattern continued up until around the time that ATV started taking the show, when both episodes became pre-recorded. As to the exact date, there are conflicting suggestions. One is 06.03.1961 (the switch to Monday and Wednesday broadcasts) while others suggest the last regular live episode was 03.02.1961. The latter is possibly more likely as other information suggests that by the time of full networkng, the show was being recorded the week before broadcast.

28.12.1968 Christmas in Coronation Street P620/1 DB / 2"

Alt.Title(s): Christmas in the Street

Duration: 44 minutes.

Pub licensees Jack and Annie Walker reminisce as they prepare for festivities in The Rovers Return, with flashbacks to bygone years including 1960, the first Christmas in Coronation Street, when Ena Sharples had to spend time in hospital.

Written by H. V. Kershaw, Geoffrey Lancashire, Jack Rosenthal and Tony Warren; produced by John Finch; directed by Tim Jones.

With Arthur Leslie (Jack Walker), Doris Speed (Annie Walker).

24.12.1969 "The talent contest" P228/939 DB / 2"

The Rovers Return stage a talent show in the snug. Ernest is on piano with Len on drums.
The acts are; Emily & Ernest reciting a song with a religious flavour, Minnie reciting The Owl & the Pussycat, Ken on trumpet, Irma as Hilda Baker, Ena & Emily singing Cockles and Mussels and Albert reciting a love poem (as the credits rolled)
Hilda & Betty agree to stay Working to Rule as Annie sticks to her guns about the missing necklace being down to them. Then Mrs Heppelwhite appears in The Rovers with it on saying she collected it herself the other day. Jack tells Annie she has egg on her face and Annie makes amends by giving Hilda & Betty some Nylons which Jack asks them to accept 'for his sake'.

Alan & Elsie are moving closer together.
Albert's Santa Claus beard is stuck on fast but Stan manages to tear it off. Priceless.

23.12.1970 "Life must go on, it's Christmas" P694/37 DB / 62

Duration: 26 minutes.

Everyone except Albert cancels the panto because of Joe's death and the tickets are given to underpriveleged children. They turn out to be completely wild and Albert has to look after them. Emily realises he won't be able to cope and goes with him. Elsie tells Alan she always thought Len had killed Steve. Greg and Gary decide to throw a farewell party in the Rovers. Det Chief Insp Castle interviews Irma, Stan, Minnie and Elsie. Albert handles the children but Emily disapears. Emily tells the residents Albert was a bigger handful than the children. Maggie is sad that Greg is leaving for Germany. Minnie doesn't like living with Albert.

Written by Leslie Duxbury; story by Harry Driver, Esther Rose and John Temple; designed by Eugene Ferguson; executive producer H. V. Kershaw; directed by Les Chatfield.

Bet is asked by Annie to work till 1 am Boxing Day night but she intends to go to a party with Eddie. Betty is at the police ball that night so Annie tells Nellie & Kitty she cannot make the Ball until she finds out that a retired Naval Lieutenant ("he's a batchelor") will be guest of honour which sets Annie thinking. Stan is still mad with Hilda that they have a cocktail cabinet but no money for booze. Stan takes it on himself to sell it and immediately buys lots of take outs from The Rovers. Hilda is mad then glad when she sees the booze. Albert tells Ena & Minnie he is to spend Christmas with Ken then finds out Ken has left for Glasgow and his twins. Albert then tells them he is to be with Beattie but they take the hint and invite him for Christmas but he plays it cool. Elsie is telling nobody about her and Alan's row. He works all day at the garage, is called to The Rovers by Dave Smith for a 'proposition' then goes to see Elsie who slams the door in his face. He walks off as the Salvation Army play out the end credits.

No episode was shown 08.03.61 because of a strike over a pay dispute. No episodes were shown 01.07.64 and 05.07.64 because of an ITV-wide strike by ACTT workers. No episode was shown 04.01.67 because of a strike over a bonus dispute. The episode intended for transmission 12.08.68 was interrupted by "technical breaks" (The Times, 14.08.68). This was going to be repeated 14.08.68 (ibid) but it appears not to have been screened properly until 19.08.68. No episodes were shown from Wednesday 27.05.70 until Wednesday 17.06.70 because of technicians' strike at Granada, and the episode shown on Mon 22.06.1970 was a repeat of the previous one (from 25.06.1970). No episodes were shown on 26.05.75 or 28.05.75 because of industrial action across the majority of the ITV network.

A Granada production. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 25 minutes.

Roger Bunce has recounted:
"Just for the record, and contrary to popular histories, Unions never operated a 'Closed-Shop' at the BBC. Union members and non-members worked alongside one another quite happily. I was a non-member for years, until I discovered just how awful the Management was, then joining a Union seemed the only option. Nor was there much in the way of demarkation. The various craft Unions cooperated with one another very well. Most of the "Who Does What" squabbles resulted from the petty empires created by different branches of Management, who refused to let other departments trespass into their territories.

Anecdote - In 1979 I was working on ‘Crackerjack’ at TV Theatre, when a Union Rep asked us to go on strike (there was an Inter-Management dispute taking place at the time). We refused, since an audience of school children were coming to see the show, and it would be unfair on them. The Union accepted this argument, and allowed us to continue. The next time I came into work, the Management sacked me, claiming I had taken part in Union action. I was locked-out for a week or more. During that time lots of captions appeared saying things like, “We are unable to bring you this programme due to Union action,” - a total lie. The programmes had been cancelled by the Management, because they had sacked all the staff needed to make them! Eventually they had to bring us back and, after legal action, to refund our lost pay. This particular 'Crackerjack' was on 20th November 1979. I can't honestly remember who the guest stars were. Although the Camera Crew at TV Theatre didn't go on strike, and made the programme in the usual way, we later learned that striking VT Engineers at TV Centre had failed to record it. (All recording was carried out remotely in those days, in the basement of TV Centre. The machinery was too large and too expensive for each studio to have its own.) So that episode was not so much, 'Missing Believed Wiped' as 'Missing Never Recorded'!"

08.12.2017	A Company of Men	HDC / HDC

In December 1956, Eden withdraws British forces from Egypt following international political pressure, before going on holiday to Jamaica because of ill health. Meanwhile, Philip continues his royal tour, punctuated by a newspaper interview that ends when the reporter presses him for information about his family's past. A shipwrecked fisherman briefly joins the tour after being rescued. At Christmas, Philip makes a radio broadcast, prompting Elizabeth to let him know that his family is waiting for him as part of her Christmas Message. Meanwhile, Eileen Parker, the wife of Philip's private secretary Michael, initiates divorce proceedings after finding proof that her husband has had an affair. Elizabeth's assistant private secretary Martin Charteris warns Adeane about Eileen, noting that her divorce could cause the press to ask about Elizabeth and Philip's own marriage.

Written by Peter Morgan; directed by Philip Martin.

08.12.2017 Marionettes HDC / HDC

Lord Altrincham, a minor peer and magazine editor, sparks a constitutional crisis after writing an article criticising Elizabeth. The piece was written after he had listened to a radio broadcast of a particularly tone-deaf speech of hers, written by her aides, to workers at a car factory. While both local newspapers and the general public are initially against him, they support him after he appears on ITV and argues that the monarchy must adapt to post-war and post-Suez society. Macmillan reminds Elizabeth of the trend of nations to abolish their monarchies, prompting her to meet with Altrincham in secret. She later implements two of his suggestions: that the 1957 Royal Christmas Message be televised, and that the Debutante Ball be opened to some of her subjects. Six months later, the Queen Mother expresses embarrassment over the monarchy's slow loss of authority, while hosting a garden party.

Written by Peter Morgan; directed by Philippa Lowthorpe.

Sandra Stone was a regular on the programme in its early days, but we do not know for how many editions. Similarly, later on, Doug Bartram was described in Television Today (24.10.1963) as being a "current member of the panel".

Based on information in the press, Southern Television considered this run to consist of three separate production series even though the broadcast run was continuous. It seems likely that the OB editions were considered to be a separate production run to the earlier, studio-based, programmes but whether that is actually the case and where the earlier season break occurred we do not know.

DAVID DIMBLEBY'S REVIEW OF 1988

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 75 minutes.

1988: the year the world became a safer place. The year of Gorbachev and Reagan, and the first steps to lasting peace. But also the year Eddie the Eagle triumphed at the Olympic Games, Ian Botham escorted a herd of elephants over the Alps, and two whales, bored of being watched by the world's press, escaped from under the ice to the open sea. As the year ends, David Dimbleby looks back at events that are already memories: some trivial, some funny, some sad, and some, for once quite encouraging.

DEAR OCTOPUS

A Yorkshire Television production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 75 minutes.

"The family," says wise Dora Randolph, in one of the best known speeches in the modern theatre, "is that dear octopus from whose tentacles we never quite escape, nor, in our innermost hearts, ever quite wish to." This is the theme of Dodie Smith's famous play in which four generations meet to celebrate the golden wedding of Dora and her husband Charles. The quiet, the wild, the black sheep and the pride-and-joy-the whole family is at the reunion. How they act and interact makes a brilliant play which is specially relevant at this family season.

Written by Dodie Smith; designed by Roger Andrews; produced by Peter Willes; directed by Joan Kemp-Welch.

Peter Barkworth (Nicholas Randolph), Lally Bowers (Belle Schlessinger), Hannah Gordon (Grace Fenning), Cyril Luckham (Charles Randolph), Anna Massey (Cynthia Randolph), Nora Swinburne (Dora Randolph), Mary Kenton (Hilda Randolph), Robin Sachs (Hugh Randolph), Lynette Davies (Laurel Randolph), Brenda Cowling (Margery Harvey), Jennifer Wright (Edna Randolph), Mark Rogers (Bill Harvey), Annabelle Lanyon (Scrap Kenton), Madeleine Christie (Nanny Patching), Anthony Dawes (Kenneth Harvey), Ursula Hirst (Gertrude).

DENIS NORDEN'S WORLD OF TELEVISION

An LWT production. Transmission details are for the ATV midlands region. Duration: 50 minutes.

The Mexican glass muncher and the South African brick biter are two of the odder items that Denis Norden has picked from more than 500 hours of television programmes that he has watched around the world before making this personal selection of the funny, intriguing or simply unbelievable things that find their way onto the small screens in some countries.

Research Charles Brand and Stephen Smallwood; executive producer Richard Drewett; produced by Nicholas Barrett; directed by Ken O'Neill.

DEREK

A Derek Productions Ltd production for Channel 4. Transmission details are for Channel 4.

Derek Noakes, a care worker at Broad Hill, a home for the elderly, who has worked there for three years. He likes watching reality television shows and game shows and is interested in celebrities, YouTube and, above all, talking about animals. He is kind, helpful and selfless, with good intentions. He is vulnerable because of his childlike naivety and distractions from society. He is ridiculed and ostracised, as well as being marginalised by mainstream society because of his social awkwardness and lack of inhibition. Derek says it is more important to be kind than to be clever or good-looking.

Main regular credit(s): Written by Ricky Gervais; produced by Charlie Hanson; directed by Ricky Gervais.

Main regular cast: Ricky Gervais (Derek Noakes).

The teams get together to play a special light-hearted Christmas version of one of the most popular TV games.

With Amanda Barrie, Miriam Karlin, Tony Tanner.

Recorded 25.11.1963. Libby Morris did not appear in this edition.

The game was played with two teams of four each comprising three regulars plus one of the guests. Apart from the Christmas edition, the teams comprised Browne, Morris and Fowler on the one hand and Connor, Mason and Stubbs on the other. For the Christmas show the teams were Browne, Connor, Barrie and Karlin against Fowler, Mason, Tanner and Stubbs. As the production numbers reflect the transmission date rather than the VT date it is quite conceivable that, aside from the Christmas show, these were broadcast live.

When it started, the programmes were generally recorded in sessions of an hour or more and the finished programmes then assembled from material shot in one or more of these sessions. We are not sure when, if ever, the programme started to use videotape. Although 2" tape would have been available at the end of the 1950s, it wouldn't have allowed the flexibility of editing which that system required and so unless or until the programmes were shot live - in which case they may not have been recorded at all - or shot as live, the programme would have had to remain on film until well into the 1960s.

In the United States of America the series was shown as Rheingold Theatre. In various ITV regions, some of the films were were billed under the titles "Crown Theatre", "Fireside Theatre", "Summer Theatre" and "Play Gems", and many of them were shown under more than one of those titles, so it is not possible to split them into separate series. In 1969 some were being shown by Granada under the title "The Short Story" while Thames Television broadcast the occasional film in this series as late as 1974. Information from the British Film Institute suggests there should be a total of 160 filmed plays in this series - we have so far located UK transmissions for 156 with the pilot and one other unbroadcast as far as we can ascertain.

"Emerald Green", "The Heel" and "The Genie" were combined to make a theatrical release entitled "The Genie" (British Lion, 1953).

25.12.2011 21:00 – 23:05 Christmas at Downton Abbey HD/DB / HDC

Duration: 100 minutes.

Charge your glasses with the best sherry, find a wing-backed chair and a smoking jacket and prepare to luxuriate in a proper Christmas treat — two hours in the best-known country house in Britain. As the doors open again at Downton Abbey, the magnificent Christmas tree is lit and masters are giving servants their gifts. But there's a shadow across the celebrations as decent, wronged John Bates languishes alone and quietly despairing as he awaits trial for murder. And such is the weight of evidence, it seems that the hangman beckons... It's a terrific episode that crackles with life and rings with emotion. There's Bates's wife Anna, mourning the married life she may never see and Lady Mary trapped in a loveless and purely pragmatic engagement to cold, controlling press baron Carlisle. Her beloved Matthew hovers in her life but both are only too aware of their duty. Honestly, it has absolutely everything you could want for Christmas Night. Even snow.

Directed by Brian Percival.

With Hugh Bonneville (Robert, Earl Of Grantham), Laura Carmichael (Lady Edith Crawley), Jim Carter (Mr Carson), Brendan Coyle (John Bates), Michelle Dockery (Lady Mary Crawley), Maggie Smith (Violet, Dowager Countess Of Grantham), Siobhan Finneran (O'Brien), Joanne Froggatt (Anna), Rob James-Collier (Thomas), Phyllis Logan (Mrs Hughes), Elizabeth McGovern (Cora, Countess Of Granthan), Sophie McShera (Daisy), Lesley Nicol (Mrs Patmore), Dan Stevens (Matthew Crawley), Penelope Wilton (Isobel Crawley), Robert Bathurst (Sir Anthony Strallan), Samantha Bond (Lady Rosamund Painswick), Paul Copley (Mr Mason), Jonathan Coy (George Murray), Iain Glen (Sir Richard Carlisle), Nigel Havers (Lord Hepworth), Sharon Small (Marigold Shore), Timothy Carlton (Judge), Dominic Kemp (Jury Foreman), Simon Poland (Defence Barrister), Tony Pritchard (Prison Officer), Nick Sampson (Prosecuting Barrister).

From letters published in TV World, we know that Desmond Morris and Miss Geraldine Jones appeared on the series some time around early-to-mid-December 1967 but we do not know precisely when, and they were not necessarily on the same show. From another letter, published in mid-January 1968, it's clear that Peter Cook, Dudley Moore and Dora Bryan appeared on the programme together, while in the same week's TV Times another correspondent bemoaned the fact that Pamela Mason had had to appear with "two comedians, a pantomime villain and a choreographer". In mid-March we learned that Mary Quant had also appeared on the programme, while in early April, Dame Sybil Thorndyke was mentioned in glowing terms as was, in early May, Godfrey Cambridge. Finally, for this series, in the TV Times w/c 08.06.1968, Ray McAnally was name-checked.

A letter in TV World w/c 27.01.1968 refers to Muhammad Ali and David Susskind who, as we can tell from the surviving programme, had appeared just three weeks earlier. This would be a typical time-lag between programme and published correspondence, but couldn't be relied upon to fix the other guests in specific programmes, particularly around the Christmas period as there would almost certainly be in changes in the usual production schedules.

EARL 'FATHA' HINES

An ATV production. Transmission details are for the Scottish Television region. Duration: 50 minutes.

A celebration of the 70th birthday of the man the New York Times described as America's greatest musician, Earl "Fatha" Hines - a jazz-pianist who was playing professional piano before the word jazz was invented. The tribute to Earl Hines and his music begins in the roaring Twenties when "Fatha" Hines and Louis Armstrong were transforming the popular concept of jazz. After half a century of brilliant music-making, the London Times described Hines as "The Muhammad Ali of jazz piano."

Tonight's tribute to Earl Hines and his music begins in the roaring Twenties when "Fatha" Hines and Louis Armstrong were transforming the popular concept of jazz.

Now, after half a century of brilliant music-making, Earl Hines is described by the London Times as "The Mohammed Ali of the jazz piano."

After 1991 credits in the 'Radio Times' became very sporadic and once the series went three times per week the credits would be mixed up together. Consequently, writer/director credits for episodes between 1994 and 2002 sometimes contain two writers/two directors and it is likely that only one writer and one director actually made the episodes. The other credit is superflous. Unfortunately, Kaleidoscope has no access to check this information for such a long-running series at this present time.

"Eastenders Revealed" on BBC3 goes behind the scenes.

Clearly the repetitious nature of the cast lists up to episode 142 do not reflect the reality. But with the episodes long-lost and ATV providing TV Times with standard lists each week we are stymied. In those early days, various features in the magazine make it clear that Iris Russell was a regular from episode one and that both John Paul and Peter Howell were regulars by September 1957, despite not appearing in the cast lists until much later.

Even after that, it appears as though a few of the regulars were listed in TV Times each time regardless of whether or not they actually made an appearance. There is eventually a point, around June 1959, where this practice is subtly amended so that these same actors are credited in bold type at the head of the listing but only appear in the cast list proper if they're in the episode. This can be confirmed from the few extant episodes from around this time.

Another minor point is that for her first two appearances Jean Aubrey's character was listed as 'Nurse Judy Wayne' in TV Times before becoming 'Nurse Julie Wayne' (or just plain 'Julie Wayne') thereafter. Whether the character's name also changed, or this was merely a mistake in the listings is unknown, but when Ms Aubrey returned to the series in 1965 her character's first name was now 'Judy' rather than 'Julie'.

One other thing that isn't exactly clear is the way things operated once the series stopped being entirely live in February 1959. For the first few weeks, both episodes were taped with Tuesday's episode being recorded on Monday and Friday's on Tuesday. After a while the studio days were pushed back by 24 hours and from this point Tuesday's episode seems to have been performed live while Friday's was recorded on Wednesday. However it's not always clear what recording medium was used. At that point in time it was standard to note in the design schedule that a programme was being taped so, in the absence of this information on a programme which we know was not broadcast live, the implication is that they were telerecorded instead, which seems odd for a series where so little survives.

There is some inconsistency in surviving paperwork in relation to the two VT numbers marked with an asterisk, perhaps as a result of the pair of episodes being recorded out of production number sequence. The numbers should be correct, but may have been swapped. They're both long-wiped anyway, so...

ERIC AND ERNIE

A BBC Wales production for BBC 2. made in association with Blue Door Adventures Ltd. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 90 minutes.

You can warm your hands on the waves of affection that waft from writer Peter Bowker's funny, sweetnatured, Bafta-winning look at the early years of our most beloved comic partnership, Eric Morecambe and Ernie Wise.

We follow the duo before they really hit the big time, from the first meeting when they were both child stars, through the days touring clubs and music halls, up to their first, disastrous TV appearance.

The evolution of the surreally brilliant act that was to make them adored is nicely done, thanks to Bowker's light touch and to a great cast, particularly comedian Daniel Rigby as the genial, uncomplaining but sharp-witted Morecambe.

Written by Peter Bowker; based on an idea by Victoria Wood; script executive Anna Ferguson; script supervisor Jane Burrows; music by Ilan Eshkeri; choreography by Sammy Brown; director of photography Tony Slater-Ling; art director Frederic Evard; designed by Pat Campbell; production executives Llyr Morus and Julie Scott; executive producers Piers Wenger, Beth Willis and Victoria Wood; production manager Dominique Molloy; line producer Chris Thompson; produced by Timothy Bricknell; directed by Jonny Campbell.

FALSTAFF

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2.

Great comic opera.

In his 80th year Verdi at last achieved his comic opera, a work brilliantly characterised in each of its six scenes. Sir John Falstaff, fat, lovable knight of the Garter Inn, is in pursuit of romance (and money) yet again and sends love-letters to Alice Ford and Meg Page. These Merry Wives of Windsor, furious at his conceit in writing identical letters, decide to punish him by arranging a rendezvous. His rascally followers, Bardolph and Pistol, warn Ford (Alice's husband) of Falstaff's infatuation and intentions. Mistress Quickly visits Falstaff at the inn and arranges the meeting for that afternoon. The old knight's mood of happy anticipation is interrupted by Ford in disguise as a Mr Fountain, pretending to seek advice on how to woo a certain Alice Ford. Unashamed, Falstaff boasts he is about to visit her. But the visit has disastrous results ... That evening outside the Garter Inn, Falstaff muses on his humiliation and consoles himself with the joys of wine. Suddenly Mistress Quickly appears with a letter from Alice; his conceit lets him fall into the trap again and optimistically he agrees to another meeting, in disguise, in Windsor Forest at midnight ...

Orchestra conducted by James Lockhart; leader Kenneth Sillito; choreography by Geraldine Stephenson; sound Ray Angel and Alan Fogg; lighting by Robert Wright; costume Juanita Waterson; designed by Eileen Diss; produced by Cedric Messina; directed by Basil Coleman.

It is December 1945, and the first post-war Christmas. In this last episode of the series, the Briggs and Ashton families are together on Christmas Day, looking forward to the promise of a world at peace and remembering what that world had cost to win.

Written by John Finch; designed by Knowles Bentley; directed by Richard Doubleday.

Many viewers were unable to see this episode because of power cuts caused by the miner's strike. It was given a second airing in most ITV regions on Wednesday 08.03.1972 at 8pm though this decision seems to have been taken too late for TVTimes' deadline (which may have been early in any case, as it too had been affected by the power cuts).

In this last programme of the series, Dorothy gives a Christmas party with a great variety of good things, both to eat and to drink. Alan Briggs, a well-known guest in Dorothy's kitchen and expert in both home-brewing and wine-making, is in charge of the drinks. He produces a drink to suit each of Dorothy's dishes. The savoury flans are matched with a red table wine made from blackberries and apple. To soften the bite of the curry there is a strong ale. And Alan's final suggestion to go with Dorothy's meringues, is a bottle of sweet mead.

A Christmas web of religious significance has been woven throughout this episode. There's a whiff of the Good Samaritan when a filthy — and flatulent — tramp is found sleeping in the confessional, and a nod to Moses over the mystery of a kidnapped baby. The underlying theme is that miracles happen at Christmas. Kembleford has been instructed to improve its Christmas Mass (last time they had five kings and a Lone Ranger, which really isn't on) because the Duke of Frome is attending. Father Brown is unperturbed, of course, but it throws Mrs McCarthy into a right tizzy.

FATHER CHRISTMAS AND THE MISSING REINDEER

A Cosgrove Hall production for Carlton. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 24 minutes.

Poignantly for Christmas, advertising executive Geoffrey Sundquist wrote this charming race-against-time tale, his first children's story, when his brother Gerry died. He was comforted by memories of happy childhood Christmasses and, he says, decided. "I wanted a piece of magic to remember Gerry by," so he wrote this as a tribute. A little boy helps Santa find his team. On Christmas Eve Father
Christmas discovers that his reindeer have vanished.

THE FIRST SILENT NIGHT

A BBC production for BBC 2. Transmission details are for BBC 2. Duration: 30 minutes.

This musical detective story uncovers the origin of the world's most famous Christmas carol. Using new evidence from the discovery in Austria of the song's oldest known version. it tells of Austrian priest Joseph Mohr and teacher Franz Gruber, who composed the work against a backdrop of war in the Salzburg region nearly 200 years ago.

A full performance of the carol re-creates the way in which it was probably heard forthe very first time on Christmas Eve 1818.

Produced and directed by Frederick Baker.

Gabriel Wolf (Narrator).

The Stage, on 06.11.1958, suggested that four would be played by Hawkins, De Sica, Dailey and Cliff Robertson, though noted that the latter's involvement was 'not finally settled'.

The original programme information booklet for this series is unusual. After listing "The Battle of the Bridge" as an "introductory film" numbered 1 in the list, the remaining episodes are grouped by the lead character, so episodes 2 to 11 are those featuring Jeff Ryder, Tim Collier's episodes are numbered 12 to 21, Ben Manfred's 22 to 30 and episodes 31 to 39 belong to Ricco Poccari.

After the opening film, the uninterrupted run on ATV London scruplulously scheduled the episodes so that the lead actors Dan Dailey, Jack Hawkins, Richard Conte and Vittorio de Sica each appeared every fourth week, and in that sequence. The single exception was with the final episode simply because it was Dailey and Conte who had each made ten solo episodes while Hawkins and De Sica had made nine.

The majority of the information detailing the real writers behind the on-screen pseudonyms was collated by Steve Neale and has previously been published in "Pseudonyms, Sapphire and Salt" (Historical Journal of Film, Radio and Television, Vol. 23, No. 3, 2003), "Swashbucklers and Sitcoms, Cowboys and Crime, Nurses, Just Men and Defenders: Blacklisted Writers and TV in the 1950s and 1960s" (Film Studies, Issue 7, Winter 2005) and "Un-American Hollywood: Politics and Film in the Blacklist Era" (Rutgers University Press, 2008).

FROM ANDY PANDY TO ZEBEDEE: THE GOLDEN AGE OF CHILDREN'S TV

Commissioned by BBC 4. Transmission details are for BBC 4.

If all the festive hurly-burly has left you in need of a smile, I can recommend this inspiring montage of beautiful memories. It’s brimming with joy. Of course we can laugh at the poshness of Andy Pandy and inherent wrongness of Watch with Mother, but this dash through the decades is a wonderland. Derek Griffiths and Phyllida Law flag up the sophistication of minimarvels like Bod and Play School and torpedo ridiculous myths. So just remind yourself what a creative dynamo Vision On was and how scary The Singing Ringing Tree could be. So yes, it’ll make you smile, but in a moist-eyed way, too. Director Clive Doig calls Tony Hart “the sweetest man I’ve ever met” and a piece about his death in 2009 ends with a shot of Hart’s plasticine pal Morph waving and climbing into his pencil box. They don’t make them like that any more. Either of them.

FUNGUS THE BOGEYMAN

Commissioned by Sky One. Transmission details are for Sky One. Duration: 75 minutes.

This is filth! Real putrid, festering drama; a lovingly adapted take on Raymond Briggs's story of a slimy monster from an underground world whose job is to make things go bump in the night for "drycleaners" (that's us). Bogey and Mildew have a crisis when their son announces he's "dry-curious". Their problems are neatly mirrored in the fractious human family of Marc Warren and Keeley Hawes, who come to cross paths with Fungus. And Victoria Wood does a great turn as a woman who knows a suspicious amount about Bogeymen.

Main regular credit(s): Based on a book by Raymond Briggs.

Main regular cast: Timothy Spall (Bogey), Joanna Scanlan (Mildew), Marc Warren, Keeley Hawes, Victoria Wood.

A CHIPS Productions Ltd production for Cinema Arts International. Duration: 89 minutes.

Mildred Roper is determined to celebrate her wedding anniversary in style. Her husband George, who had quite forgotten it, books at a table at the luxury restaurant where he once proposed to her. Unfortunately, over the years the restaurant has changed into a transport café — so Mildred decides they will spend a weekend at a plush London hotel — where George is mistaken for a professional assassin...

Written by Dick Sharples; music by Les Reed; executive producer Brian Lawrence; produced by Roy Skeggs; directed by Peter Frazer-Jones.

With Stratford Johns (Harry Pinto), David Barry (Elvis), Sue Bond (Marlene), Kenneth Cope (Harvey), Dudley Sutton (Jacko), Neil McCarthy (Eddie), Michael Angelis (Cafe Proprietor), Garfield Morgan (Bridges), Harry Fowler (Fisher), Caron Gardner (Bishop's lady), Vicky Michelle (Bishop's lady), Linda Frith (Angela), Bruce Montague, Hugh Walters, Johnny Wade, John Carlin, Suzanne Owens, Bridget Brice, Robin Parkinson, Roger Avon, Mimi De Braie, Joan Ware, Dennis

In April 1976, the final episode of Man About the House brought the series to a close. Johnnie Mortimer and Brian Cooke had been asked already to create a sequel sitcom to continue the huge ratings. Thames Television, keen to secure the services of Richard O'Sullivan, gave him an option to star in “Robin’s Nest”. However, Mortimer and Cooke were also keen to explore the surprising hit of Man about the House – the landlord couple George and Mildred Roper.

Played by stalwart character actors Brian Murphy and Yootha Joyce, the British public loved the lazy, workshy, sexually-demotivated George, whose only interests were beer, darts and budgies. Mildred was warm, lively and full of unfulfilled passion. George would set up the jokes, and Mildred would deliver the punchline. George frequently looked intimidated by Mildred, but seemed to get his own way far too frequently, including his love for eating pickled onions in bed, which suggested that Mildred’s bark was far worse than her bite!

In September 1976 the Ropers returned. Now they were homeless, having had their house purchased by the council for a new road development. They chose to settle in middle-class suburban London, in a road uncannily looking like a new housing estate only a mile from the London Teddington studios of Thames Television.

Composer Johnny Hawksworth created a catchy little number for the theme tune and the series burst onto the screen with life and vitality. Mildred was the ultimate social climber and wanted to join the Women’s Institute. George hated snobbery and the writers Mortimer/Cooke were inspired by their choice of neighbours – the Fourmile family.

Jeffrey Fourmile – fellow social climber and snob; his wife Ann – warm and motherly and little Tristram: endearing, sweet intelligent and remarkably similar looking to Kaleidoscope’s TV Memories column writer Adrian Petford!

The clash between Jeffrey and George allowed the comedy to flow freely, whilst Mildred and Ann could bond and become closer. The casting of Nicholas Bond-Owen as Tristram was inspired, because he brought innocence and a steady source of feed lines to keep the comedy coming.

The series quickly moved to a second and third series, including the honour of a Boxing Day 1977 special. The fourth series was moved forwards and shown straight after the third series, because advertisers were desperate to place product in the top ten rated show of the UK.

However, the final ‘series 5 and 6’ were actually a random and sporadic assembly of episodes made for different series and a short run of new production in 1979. Why? Well the series was experiencing enormous production problems due to Yootha Joyce having an alcohol problem. (I think unless you can substantiate this claim, you should delete it - as it stands, it smacks of cheap, tabloid sensationalism. RC.)

The film version of George and Mildred in December 1979 was to be Joyce's last work. She was admitted to hospital in the summer of 1980. Yootha died of liver failure four days after her 53rd birthday on 24 August 1980. Brian Murphy was at her bedside. She was cremated at Golders Green Crematorium. The inquest into her death revealed that she had been drinking over half a bottle of brandy a day for ten years. She made her last television appearance as herself on Max on 14 January 1981, but she continued to play Mildred Roper until February 1981.

With the lead star unavailable any more the series finished. The series is available to watch again on DVD. Murphy went on to make The Incredible Mr Tanner, L for Lester and appear in Last of the Summer Wine for many years.

MACE hold film inserts for this programme. The material is logged against ATV Today as presumably it was made by the same team.

It was Midlands only and ran for 20 minutes in the ATV Today slot. The surviving film is mostly archive footage including Ella Shields, Charles Coborn and Lily Morris (who were all deceased by 1967). Wee George Wood, Hetty King, Billy Russell and Harold Manning appear in newly shot interviews. It runs 14 minutes so is most of the programme. The VT elements have long gone.

ATV Today also put together a complete studio programme for Christmas day that year which was presented by David Lloyd. Guests included Philip Harben and T.P. McKenna. Again information is from the schedules So like all VT material for that period it no longer exists. Source: MACE.

As we have no corroborating paperwork we have marked the episodes which no longer exist as junked, but we think it highly unlikely that the majority were recorded by ATV at all. From late September until the end of December 1967 ABC showed the programmes on Sunday afternoons while the rest of the network followed the original ATV transmission on Saturday evenings. Later, Scottish, TWW and occasionally Anglia would follow suit before the show was networked at around 4.45pm on Sundays. During the non-network period, we believe that the programme was recorded locally by ABC and the other companies for their later broadcasts, rather than by ATV - but this isn't certain.

If The Golden Shot has any long-standing legacy in British culture, it’s probably formed of a phrase sounding something like that. This was a game show, at its peak the most watched one on British television. Its final edition was shown almost exactly 35 years ago – on 13 April 1975.

Its origin was a Swiss-German show – Der Goldener Schuss – devised by Werner and Hannes Schmidt which was a hit on German television. In 1967, Lew Grade bought the British rights to the programme for ATV and, apparently as a result of seeing him play the part of a game-show host on a Charlie Drake programme, decided that Canadian singer Jackie Rae was the ideal person to host it.

The premise of the show was incredibly simple, though technically quite complex for the time. Using a crossbow with a camera mounted on it looking straight down the bow's sight, contestants would attempt to score points by firing crossbow bolts at a series of targets, often involving apples in some way. The winner each week was given a chance to go for a prize which required them to shoot through a thread at the centre of a target. Hit the bullseye and break the thread – and they won the jackpot.

Although precise details would change over the years, the basic principles didn't. The opening round would consist of a minimum of four contestants – two selected from the studio audience and two viewers at home in touch with the studio by telephone. A blind-fold cameraman would operate the bow for this initial stage and the contestants, who were watching the crossbow sight on a TV screen, whether at home or in the studio, would instruct the cameraman how to move the bow, hence "Up bit… right a bit…" and so on, to try to hit a target. Those who succeeded became the contestants on the following week's show. From this point, the contestants would operate the crossbows themselves, either directly or – for one round – via a joystick, using a television monitor to line up the sight with the target, but either way, the camera on the bow let the viewers in on the action.

The programme started as a primetime Saturday evening show and while the critics weren't particularly fond of it, it was being watched by between eleven and thirteen million people and was regularly one of the twenty most-watched programmes of the week. However Jackie Rae was not the ideal host. At this point, it was a live show where things quite often went wrong, and Rae often looked ill at ease. Following an excellent appearance as a guest, Bob Monkhouse took over the reins and was instantly more at home, as perhaps he should have been – even then he already had quite a few game shows under his belt. A number of these had been for ABC Television and whether it was jealousy on their part at Bob working for ATV or just a coincidence, it was around the time of his arrival that ABC moved the programme to Sunday afternoons while the remainder of the network still watched on Saturdays.

Whether it was this or, as is often reported, a suggestion from Lew Grade's nephew Michael, soon that slot was the programme's home across the country, where it would remain for the rest of its life. While this would put an end to its regular appearances in the top twenty, it would still attract about ten million viewers, very impressive for a tea-time show on a Sunday.

Monkhouse would be with the programme until February 1972 at which point Norman Vaughan took over as host. Like Bob, Vaughan had previously compèred Sunday Night At The London Palladium but like Jackie Rae, Norman didn't always appear comfortable and in September 1973 he left the programme to be replaced by comedian Charlie Williams. Unfortunately while a gifted stand-up comedian, the programme was a step too far for Williams who only stayed with the programme for six months until it took its first break in over five years in March 1974.

Three months later, back came The Golden Shot, and back too came Bob Monkhouse. Bob had made a deal to try to make the show a success again and then leave on a high to present a new game show, Celebrity Squares, something he would be doing just three months after that final bolt was shot, 35 years ago.

Christmas is cancelled at the Leadbetters when the Christmas tree and entire order fails to arrive. The Goods host Christmas instead.

With David Battley (Bill).

The Good Life, Porridge, Dad's Army, Are You Being Served etc - all have had shorter versions made of most of their episodes because they were too close to or exceeded the 30 minute slot they were allocated. The original versions also exist, and are not going to be disposed of, it's just they are no longer deemed suitable for transmission without making other programmes run late, especially since multiple trails became compulsory... "Wind-Break War" was first shown in the edited version on 25/10/93 and has been shown only in that version since - the edit is in fact about 55 seconds long.

A studio recording exists for one episode and is held by the BBC and Kaleidoscope.

When this new comedy programme began its first series, even then its stars would have been familiar to viewers – and to radio listeners. Tim Brooke-Taylor had appeared with Marty Feldman, John Cleese and others in At Last The 1948 show; Graeme Garden had featured regularly in Twice A Fortnight – as had Bill Oddie; and all three had been regulars in the long-running radio series I’m Sorry, I’ll Read That Again and had worked together in the spoof “University of the Air” comedy show Broaden Your Mind. This new programme was the first which was designed solely as a vehicle for the three of them – and it was, of course, The Goodies.
The series would mix visual and verbal humour and while a few of the gags were a little risqué, most of it was family-friendly fun and the legions of children who enjoyed it have meant that it has often been treated less seriously than its big rival at the time: Monty Python’s Flying Circus.
Although the basic premise would be diluted as time passed, in the original series the three characters – named Tim, Graeme and Bill after the actors who played them – set up an agency to... to... “To do good to people,” says Tim early in episode one. “How wet!” responds Bill, but that’s pretty much what they did with adverts for their agency offering their services to do “Anything / Anytime”.
This gave them carte blanche to do stories about pretty much whatever they wanted, from guarding the Crown Jewels to helping to advertise a bedtime drink and some toothpaste, to running a pirate radio station, making gender education films, battling a government made up of very large puppets of children’s favourites, making silent movies, and demonstrating a variety of unusual martial arts.

Their adventures took them to Loch Ness, into space, down a Cornish clotted-cream mine, into the stomach of a dinosaur and around the centre of London while it was being menaced by a giant white kitten.
Although all three of the actors would work together to decide what the various episodes of each series would be about, the scripts were mostly written by Graeme and Bill, and as the series progressed they realised that the roles they were writing for the guest actors were getting all the best lines. So gradually these roles diminished in importance as did the whole agency idea and in its place most stories featured two of the trio trying to stop or sabotage some madcap scheme of the third.
While starting out in a small way on BBC 2, by the mid-1970s even these screenings were attracting audiences of 7 or 8 million while repeats on BBC 1 would regularly attract 11 or 12 million people. One such viewer was the unlucky Alex Mitchell who died while laughing at the episode “Kung Fu Kapers!” – a spoof of the then recent martial arts western series Kung Fu – in which Bill takes up the ancient Lancastrian martial art of Ecky Thump.
Musically the episodes were interesting too. As well as the theme song, a large number of songs were written by Bill Oddie and either Michael Gibbs or Dave MacRae and these were often used to accompany the sections of each episode which were made on location on film. Later, of course, Bill’s musical talents would get wider exposure and various Goodies’ singles would spent a total of 38 weeks in the charts between December 1974 and January 1976.
After their eighth series, which was shown in early 1980, the BBC temporarily put the programme on hold as their comedy budget had apparently been used up by the television adaptation of Douglas Adams’ The Hitch Hiker’s Guide To The Galaxy. The trio moved over to London Weekend for one final series.
Various newspapers, radio stations and – belatedly – BBC television, are marking the anniversary over the next week or so, as are Network who are releasing another set of episodes on DVD. Kaleidoscope also has an interest as we are publishing Andrew Pixley’s book “The Goodies: Super Chaps Three” on Monday.
Series info:
There were 65 standard-length Goodies episodes – one of which was partly re-shot for entry into the Montreux Television Festival, two longer specials and 14 short editions shown by the BBC between 1970 and 1980. A further 7 editions screened by LWT in 1981/82.

GRANPA

A TVS production for Channel 4. Transmission details are for Channel 4. Duration: 26 minutes.

The film opens with a photo album, showing Granpa as a baby with his mother, him as a young boy, him as a young adult, dressed in a WWII officers uniform beside a vintage car and his girlfriend, him being wedded with his wife, them having kids, them becoming an elderly couple, and finally with just granpa with a baby Emily.

The entire theme for the film celebrates the relationship between a small girl named Emily, and her kindly but ailing grandfather. Emily's playful innocence is contrasted with Granpa's increasing frailty. Aware that he will not be around for much longer, he shares his memories of adventures and days gone by.

These memories are vividly brought to life by her grandfather's tales, beginning in the spring a description of Granpa's childhood and youth in the early part of the 20th century, being part in a Noah's Ark-influenced story when it began to rain, remembering the days when Grandpa played the piano for the school's choir, and enjoy ballroom dances with his wife.

Based on a book by John Burningham; music by Howard Blake; closing theme sung by Sarah Brightman; produced by John Coates; directed by Dianne Jackson.

Peter Ustinov (Voice Of Granpa), Emily Osborne (Voice Of Emily).

24.12.2016 21:00 – 22:30 Christmas Special HDC / HDC

Duration: 75 minutes.

It's the week before Christmas and our handsome vicar is rehearsing the church's Nativity play. His pal the police inspector is shopping for toys with his children. Snow is falling. All is well with the world. For about three minutes. Because, as we've come to expect, this drama guides us to a kinder, gentler age that proves to be nothing of the sort. You get the feeling Grantchester would put gravel in our mince pies and a mousetrap in every stocking if it could convince us the world is a dark and lonely place. Poor whisky-sodden Sidney can do nothing to save pregnant Amanda from the wrath of her horrid father. And we know what happens to pregnant women in Christmas stories. Meanwhile, there's a film noir murder case to solve, complete with a winter wedding, a platinum blonde and a strangled banker. It all weaves together nicely and there are, in the end, glimmers of light.

Written by Daisy Coulam; directed by Edward Bennett.

With Morven Christie (Amanda Hopkins), Al Weaver (Leonard Finch), Tessa Peake-Jones (Mrs Maguire), Kacey Ainsworth (Cathy Keating), Pip Torrens (Edward Kendall), Seline Hizli (Margaret Ward), Lorne MacFadyen (Phil Wilkinson), Julian Glover (Albert Tannen), Anna Chancellor (Aunt Cece), Maimie McCoy (Linda Morgan), Enzo Cilenti (Felix Davis), Terence Maynard (Larry Simpkins), Faith Alabi (Kitty), Mariah Gale (Gail Tannen), Frankie Fox (Neville Grant), Skye Lucia Degruttola (Esme Keating), Lexie Benbow-Hart (Jessica Davis).

Sheridan Owen, a young writer exhausted by the launching of his first best seller, escapes for a weekend in the country with his wife Alex. A welcoming rural pub seems to offer an idyllic refuge from a thunderstorm. But the place increasingly bears a resemblance to the setting of his novel. As the uneasy night progresses, bafflement turns to doubt and alarm. Soon the writer realises that he may have to face the terrifying climax of his own story.

Adapted by Julian Bond; based on a story by Kingsley Amis; designed by Colin Rees; directed by John Irvin.

HEARTBEAT CHRISTMAS ALBUM

A Granada Yorkshire production for ITV. Transmission details are for the Central region. Duration: 22 minutes.

What makes Christmas in Aidensfield so special? Is it the touching storylines, the sense of belonging or the people? HEARTBEAT CHRISTMAS ALBUM takes a nostalgic trip down memory lane with cast members old and new to find out what they think truly makes Christmas in Aidensfield. Traditionally, it snows in Aidensfield at Christmas, where you can find the villagers enjoying a drink in the Aidensfield Arms and guarantee Claude Greengrass is up to no good. HEARTBEAT CHRISTMAS ALBUM takes a look at the romances that began under the mistletoe, the Christmas parties and who's behind the Santa suit. Well known for the special guest appearances, Christmas is no different. In the 1999 Christmas special, Stag at Bay, Charlotte Church made her acting debut as Katie Kendall, a young girl whose parents had separated. With Katie going missing and deer being killed on Lord Ashfordly's grounds, Christmas is closing in. When Katie turns up and a goodwill gesture from Greengrass helps the police catch the poacher, the Christmas concert goes ahead as planned. Other well known faces that have appeared over the years include Twiggy Lawson and an early appearance by Bruce Jones, CORONATIONS STREET'S Les Battersby in 1994's A Winters Tale. It wouldn't be Christmas without Santa Claus and Greengrass, with some persuasion, will don the famous red suit to make it really feel like Christmas. HEARTBEAT CHRISTMAS ALBUM takes a look behind the scenes of this years Christmas special Auld Acquaintance with a guest appearance from Todd Carty. Christmas in Aidensfield wouldn't be Christmas without drinks in the pub, a Christmas party at Lord Ashfordley's estate or a Christmas concert. A Heartbeat Christmas, no matter what happens will leave a festive feeling all round.

A Thames Television production. Transmission details are for the Scottish Television region. Duration: 40 minutes.

Josef Mohr, parish priest of a village in Austria, hurriedly scribbled down some words for a hymn. The church organ had broken down and a new hymn was needed to help fill out the Christmas Eve service.

This programme of Christmas music, recorded in Austria, tells the story of how the world's best loved carol Silent Night came to be written. From the riverside village near Saltzburg where the carol was composed to the mountains of the Tyrol, the programme traces the extraordinary way in which the carol was born and then spread around the world.

THE HIDDEN STORY OF JESUS

Commissioned by Channel 4. Transmission details are for Channel 4. Duration: 105 minutes.

At this time of year Christians are asked to reflect on the story of the miraculous birth of Jesus, born to a virgin and whose birth was attended by angels, shepherds and wise men bearing gifts. But these events also apply to two other religious figures: Hindu god Krishna and Buddha. In India, there is also a wholly different version of Jesus's life story where he didn't die on the cross but escaped to Kashmir. In this investigation, Robert Beckford asks why there are so many versions of the Christ story across the world; and where does that leave the Christian story and belief in Jesus?

A BBC production for BBC 1. Transmission details are for BBC 1. Duration: 30 minutes.

Are you sitting comfortably? Good. Well, don't tell the children, but there is more than one Father Christmas. There is a Santa Rat who can't stand kids; there are Santas who drink (in the North Pole pub, naturally); there's one who visits a hypnotherapist to gain confidence. There's even a Singing Santa who not only delivers telegrams, but also takes off her cloak to show nicely filled stockings. There are, of course, traditional Santas who sit all day in grottoes just being nice to children—children like Lucy, Jane and Timothy who still believe in the one and only Santa and talk tonight about the magic of Christmas. Sadly, the age of innocence is soon over. So make sure the children are tucked up in bed and fast asleep before this programme.

31.12.1981 Ep 2067 DB-DV / 2"

With Sylvia Marshall, Cherry Marshall, Ann Ladbury, Mary Morris, Avril Bell, Lucy Morgan, Vivian Tidbury, Daphne Lee, Claire Kitchen, Marian Shuttleworth, Vida Adamoli, Sarah Litvinoff, Maggie Baldari, Lynne Inglis, Sister Immaculata, Karen Saxby, Anna Clements, Pauline Parrington, Mim Summers, Anne Scott, Sunny Stout, Judy Andreason.

All surviving shows circa 1980/1981. For the series "Southern Gold" and in particular the one featuring the ladies from Houseparty, one of the ladies had kept quite a few off air "Houseparty" programmes on VHS. They wanted to use a clip, as none of the 2 inch survived, so we used these VHSs. An engineer took the opportunity to dub off all the available programmes and these are what survive now on Digi at Wessex. They're mainly off air from Thames and some have the opening and ends clipped. Appearing though, in various combinations, are the regular ladies from Houseparty. e.g Mary Morris, Sylvia Marshall, Cherry Marshall, Ann Ladbury, Claire Kitchen, Marion Shuttleworth, Sister Immaculata etc.

Held at Wessex Archive.

27.12.1978	Christmas How	J / 2"

The programme that never takes itself too seriously presents a special edition for the festive season. Answers will be revealed to such mysteries as: How to get your decorations knotted; how to detect the coins in a Christmas pudding—and how to drink holly.

The original idea for HOW, then known as KNOW HOW, was Jack Hargreaves' while he was working for Rediffusion in 1964. When he joined Southern Television as an executive producer in January 1965 it seems that he took the idea with him.
